

Teacher: Putri Wanna

Subject/Grade Level: G2

Observer: Bryan Fradgley

Date and Time of Observation October 17th 9:30-10:00

Teacher Professional Goals: Explicit ATL and/or LP teaching and use of verbiage during interventions

- Tyler will improve his full body listening during whole group instruction by remaining in an assigned area, looking at the teacher, and refraining from making disruptive noises
- Tyler will raise his hand to share his knowledge and refrain from blurting out answers until he is called on

The following elements of teaching and learning were observed during this lesson:

○ Learning driven by inquiry	○ Collaborative learning
○ A LP attribute was explicitly developed	○ Differentiated learning
○ Learning focused on conceptual understanding	○ Students developed as caring global citizens
○ Students given agency to guide their learning	○ Learning explicitly developed an ATL skill

Student Engagement Observations

Positive Feedback

- Ms. Wanna reviewed the student's behavior checklist and goals, focusing on:
 - Raising his hand before speaking
 - Taking turns during conversations
 - Avoiding blurting out
 - Practicing Listening Skill (full body listening)Checklist: Check-in, Goal Reminder, Start my Task, Complete my Task, ATL Skills and LPA, Self-reflection
 - A timer was used to support focus and transitions
 - Expectations were reinforced: 1) No talking during instructions 2) Speak only after the video ends 3) Use full-body listening throughout
- Your structured approach; reviewing the checklist, reinforcing expectations, and using a timer, created a calm and focused learning environment for the student. You guided the student through social-emotional goals such as turn-taking, full body listening and impulse control, while maintaining an encouraging presence.

Lesson (Learning Activity: Star Wars – The Empire Strikes Back - 5 min)

- The student was highly engaged and attentive during the video
- He showed curiosity by asking about unfamiliar vocabulary (e.g, "What is carbonite?")
- Ms. Wanna reminded him to wait until the video ended before asking questions
- Ms. Wanna has the ability to balance behavioral coaching with academic engagement, especially during the Star Wars activity and vocabulary review, which reflects her dedication to holistic student development.
- The student responded to comprehension questions:
 - Meaning of "tut tut", name of the planet, who shot the drone, Identity of the hunter
- The student successfully summarized the main theme of the story. Ms. Wanna was highly engaged and energetic with him. Providing positive feedback and encouragement
- Participated in vocabulary review:
 - Reviewed bolded words from the text
 - Identified and located 10 vocabulary words
 - Wrote the vocabulary words on the whiteboard
- The student was prompted to revisit his checklist at the end of the session
- He selected Reflective as his IB Learner Profile trait

- Ms. Wana engaged in an ATL (Approaches to Learning) discussion with the student on self-management Skills
- Ms. Wana completed a self-reflection with the student on the importance of waiting to ask questions at appropriate times. The reflective discussion and ATL connection further showcased her integration of IB principles into daily practice during her interventions.

Feedback & Reflection (Below are some prompts to consider; however, you are not required to address all of them. Please provide 2-3 brief paragraphs).

I feel well-prepared for the intervention. I created a checklist to guide the student, ensuring he understands his tasks during the session. Additionally, I provided the student with a degree of autonomy in their learning; for instance, he can choose the topic he wants to hear for his listening activity.

I aim to develop and implement various strategies to help the student refrain from blurting out. One approach I'm considering is the "pause and think" technique, which encourages him to hold back and integrate this goal into different activities.

Today's activity aligned with his goal of enhancing full-body listening skills while reducing blurting. It required the student to engage in his listening skills and maintain silence during the session.

I would love to create more engaging, student-centered, and enjoyable activities, such as incorporating educational games.
